Important notes on preparing teas in our tearoom:

ZHONG

In the times of the Qing Dynasty, the cha wan tea bowl, or zhong in the dialect, or gaiwan in the Czech transcription, became widespread. This is a tea bowl with a lid and a saucer. Pour an adequate amount of tea. Cover with hot water. Strain the tea through the lid and cover with water again. More infusion tea, served with a thermos of hot water.

JUG

The tea is prepared in a teapot with a volume of 0.3 l - 0.5 l. Several infusions can be made from the leaves of some teas (the number of infusions can be found with individual teas). Alert the attendant and she will bring you a pot with another pickle.

FLOWERING TEA

Tea is more of an infusion, prepared in glass teapots. You prepare the tea yourself. A beautiful colorful flower will bloom right before your eyes.

MATE

We serve in traditional calabashes (gourd container) and bombilla (straw, usually metal). Serve with a thermos of hot water and sugar.

White teas

Due to its specific taste, white tea is a real delicacy among teas. Due to its complex cultivation, it is called the tea of emperors. As part of a healthy lifestyle, it is gradually building an important place in the fight against civilizational diseases, obesity and stress.

Only young buds, which are covered with fine silvery white hairs, are used to make this tea. That's where it gets its name from. In the rainy season, these buds develop into leaves and thus lose their specific taste and smell.

Bai Mu Tan

White Peony belongs to the higher varieties of white tea. Its pronounced antioxidant effects can also help in cases of bronchitis and asthma. The leaves of this tea are smaller than those of Shou Mei with a large amount of silver fluff - tips. The infusion is light yellow, with a mild, pleasantly invigorating taste. Zhong 95 CZK

Teapot (3 infusions) 140 CZK

Xue Long

White Snow Dragon will amaze you with its intense and pleasantly sweet taste. The yellow, sparkling infusion smells of fruit and herbs. The taste is strong and fresh. Thanks to its lower caffeine content, it is suitable for drinking all day long while doing mental work, or for sitting with a book in the evening before going to bed.

Zhong 115 CZK

Shou Mee

Eyebrows of Longevity, in addition to the positive effects on human health common to all white teas, also has a positive effect on liver function. The larger broken leaves of this tea may resemble Pao Chung. The infusion is deep yellow, the taste is naturally sweet, delicate with a distinct, fruity aroma and a long aftertaste.

Zhong 105 CZK

Teapot (3 infusions) 145 CZK

Guanxi

White Feathers is an inconspicuous yet very delicate white tea from the Guangxi province. Its hand-rolled leaves literally dance when poured with water. Try the tea that belonged to the imperial court. It is full of antioxidants, so it is said to prolong life and rid the body of many ailments.

Green teas

Green tea has been known to mankind for more than 5 thousand years. It is considered true, real tea. The largest producers of green tea are China, Japan and other countries in East and Southeast Asia. It is also one of the most popular drinks there. Tea has a beneficial effect on the heart and brain, and is excellent for reducing hangovers.

A number of rituals are associated with the preparation of green tea, it has become part of cultural traditions for many nations.

Gunpowder Temple of Heaven

Gunpowder has a dark yellow infusion and a pleasant smoky aroma that makes it clear that Gunpowder Temple of Heaven is no tea. The taste is very distinct, as if surrounded by a pleasant smokiness. The leaves are evenly twisted into small pearls, so the tea is also attractive to look at.

Teapot (1 infusion) 95 CZK

Lu Mao Hou

Green-haired monkey is a famous Chinese green tea originating from Fujian province. The tea leaf is spirally coiled, richly fluffed and has a pure green color. The brew is light green with a nutty, floral aroma and a sweet, slightly roasted taste.

Bai Mao Hou

White-haired monkey is a famous Chinese tea from Fujian province. The more twisted grey-green leaves are richly fluffed, the aroma of the tea is saturated with slightly floral tones, the infusion is sweetly aromatic. The consistency is thick, the taste of the tea has a hint of 'sun', typical mainly for white teas even though it is green tea.

Zhong 95 CZK

Teapot (2 infusions) 140 CZK

Mandarin Jasmine Tea

The infusion has a yellow color, the aroma and taste is very delicate, sweet and specific. The jasmine notes are unmistakable, so they combine perfectly with the freshness and slight bitterness of green tea. A drop of natural aroma helps to keep the intoxicating aroma longer and increases the experience of drinking tea even more.

Zhong 95 CZK

Tai Mu Long Zhu Cha

Dragon's Eye is one of the most sought-after teas in the world, with a pale yellow-green color sometimes compared to straw. The aroma is natural, light and lingers in the mouth long after the cup is finished. The taste is usually described as captivating and quite exceptional, slightly sweet, with a trace of plants, chestnuts and pines.

Gyokuro

Green tea grown in a unique way in the Uji area located on the southern edge of the city recognized as the center of Japanese culture. It is, of course, Kyoto. The rare tea infusion has a light green color and a clean, fresh aroma. Its taste is extraordinary, i.e. very delicate, sweet, with a velvety reverberation and a floral trace.

Zhong 195 CZK

Sencha

It is a very pleasant green tea with emerald leaves. It has a mildly spicy flavor with a subtle hint of sweet tartness and a hint of bitterness. After drinking, a cool, seaside aroma is also described, leaving a sweet trail. The infusion has a light green to almost yellow-green color, it is clear and opalescent.

Zhong 105 CZK

Happy Buddha

The first thing in your mouth is the grassy bitter taste of green Senchi, followed immediately by the sweet accent of tropical fruit with a hint of cinnamon. Overall, Happy Buddha feels sweet, pleasantly astringent and exotic.

Zhong 140 CZK

Happiness tea

The basis of Happiness tea is green Sencha. The primary taste is grassy fresh, with a touch of floral sweetness. As this loose blend is full of herbs and fruits, we can smell the characteristic chamomile and lemon balm as well as the slight tartness of the blackberry. The color of the pickle can be described as a soft green with a slightly yellowish tint.

Zhong 115 CZK

Teapot (3 infusions) 165 CZK

Dragon tea

Green, white and yellow tea make a wonderful bright orange infusion. Its color reflects red fruit, of which there is indeed plenty in Dragon Tea. The taste is mainly natural, delicate and balanced. Sour blackberries and currants underline sweet raspberries. In the end, we recognize a pepper tip and a vanilla caress.

Zhong 105 CZK

Teapot (2 infusions) 145 CZK

Genmaicha

Japanese green tea with roasted rice. It gives us a mild pickle with the typical taste of roasted rice. An excellent drink for sipping all day or with food. We traditionally buy this tea from the producer who launched genmaichu in Japan. Japanese rice and Gyokuro tea leaves are used for its production.

Zhong 95 CZK

Teapot (2 infusions) 130 CZK

Genmaicha with Matcha

Genmanicha is light, slightly roasted, grassy and nutty. In contrast, Japanese matcha tastes sweet and soft. When both are combined, a very pleasant drink is created - light, sweet and with a hint of roast. Its color is bright green and its aroma is fresh.

Zhong 125 CZK

Teapot (2 infusions) 165 CZK

Matcha

Matcha tastes incredibly interesting. At the first moment, we recognize a sweet taste, not too pronounced. After it, a gentle, light astringency develops in the mouth. Unlike Japanese Matcha, Chinese Matcha is more pronounced and fuller. The drink, which is prepared by whipping with a whisk, has an unmistakable emerald green color. The smell is rather inconspicuous, faintly grassy.

Le Tuareg

The tea blend consists of Chinese Gunpowder green tea and Moroccan Nana mint. A sweet and bitter taste with a hint of smoky finish is a typical characteristic of rough tea, not only for true connoisseurs, but also for those who are just starting out with teas. If you're looking for mint tea and a boost of green tea, this is the right choice.

Blue-green (oolong) teas

Oolongs are characterized by so-called semi-fermentation. That is why they are also called blue-green or semi-green teas. Chinese tea tree leaves are collected up to five times a year in Taiwan. The harvest takes place from April to December.

Healthy and so very good! Semi-fermented Oolong gives an excellent basis for the taste of the famous caramel. Together they form a treat that pleases the taste buds and caresses the heart, brain, stomach and skin. The popular Oolong has many health benefits. It almost works wonders when drunk regularly.

CHINA OSMANTHUS OOLONG

China Osmanthus is a really special tea. Oolong from the traditional province of Fujian was named Osmanthus. That's because its unique scent is reminiscent of its flowers. We have enriched this unique Oolong with a little peach aroma, which gives the tea a sweet fruity taste. This one is very smooth, floral jasmine and delicate. Make more pickles from it. Everyone will be a little different.

Red teas

Teas in which the so-called fermentation process complete. The label "red tea" is used exclusively in China. In the rest of the tea world, the label "black tea" is used. Depending on the type, the color of the pickle is dark brown to black with red hues. It owes its color, strong aroma and taste to fermentation.

It contains more (about 4%) caffeine than other types of tea and therefore stimulates brain activity better. In China, it is known as a tea that ensures longevity and health. In addition to their antioxidant effect, they also have antimicrobial and anti-inflammatory effects, which is why they are sometimes referred to popularly as natural antibiotics.

Jin Zhen

First-class quality leaf - contains almost exclusively only golden tips (the youngest leaves on the tea bush). Richly fluffed tips are uniformly rolled into slightly twisted needles - they unfold beautifully after watering. The scent of apricots, honey or peaches can be found in the dry leaf. The surprisingly clear infusion has a very delicate taste with a very pleasant long-lasting taste.

Black teas

Black tea is the most widespread and well-known tea in our country. It is the type of tea that undergoes longer oxidation than green or white tea. But all these teas are made from the leaves of the Chinese tea plant, Camellia sinensis in Latin.

The most famous black teas come from India's Darjeeling or Assam. The production of Sri Lanka is also top-notch, and China and Japan are definitely not standing aside.

Rize

Turkish tea with dark black fractions of petals, which give off a slightly sweetish aroma. Despite the dark brownish-red color of the infusion, this tea is gentle. Its full, slightly bitter taste has distinctive, sweet spicy accents, such as cinnamon or cloves. Serve sweetened.
